

Exquisite cultures of Rajasthan and Gujarat

Award-winning photographer Fredric Roberts has always revered the people of Rajasthan and Gujarat. These images are dedicated to the beautiful people he met in his travels to these states—people with an amazing richness in spirit and a larger vision of life, one that transcends monetary wealth.

▲ Gher dancers awaiting the start of the Holi festival in Kawant, Gujarat.

▲ Sunrise at the Camel Fair in Pushkar, Rajasthan.

▲ A cattle herder boy in the Medka village in Siyana, Rajasthan.

▲ A Rabari cowherd boy tending to his cattle at the Idar Village on the road to Poshina, Gujarat.

▲ Women talking at the Amber Palace outer courtyard in Jaipur, Rajasthan.

▼ A Garasia woman harvesting wheat in the Bedi village near Poshina, Gujarat.

▲ Woman carrying her laundry at Brahmapuri in Jodhpur, Rajasthan.

▲ A heavily decorated Gher dancer during the Holi festival in Kavant, Gujarat.

◀ Beautiful nuns at the morning prayer ceremony at the Swaminarayan Temple in Bhuj, Gujarat.

▶ Gher dancers mingle with the street crowd in Kavant, Gujarat.

▲ An overview of the Adinath Jain Temple Complex in Palitana, Gujarat, during morning prayers.

About Fredric Roberts

Fredric Roberts spent eight years travelling through Asia and photographing its people. His journey took him to India, Bhutan, Cambodia, Thailand, Myanmar, China and all points in between. Images from his travels are featured in his two books: HUMANITAS Volume One, a finalist for Forward Magazine's '2005 Book of the Year Award', and HUMANITAS II, featured in the New York Times' '100 Notable Books of 2007'.

For more information about Fredric Roberts and his work visit www.fredricroberts.com